So well their wants he pictured That when the plate was passed, Each listener felt his pocket, And goodly sums were cast; For all must lend a shoulder

To josh the rolling car That carried light and comfort To "Borroboola Gha." That night their wants and sorrows

Lay heavy on my soul,
And in deep meditation
I took my morning stroll,
Till something caught my mantle
With eager grasp and wild,
And looking down with wonder,
I was a little abild.

A pale and puny creature In dirt and rags forlorn; What could she want, I questioned, Impatient to be gone.
With trembling voice she answered,
"We live just down the street,
And mamma she is dying,
And we've nothing left to cat."

Down in a wretched basement, With nould upon the walls,
With mould upon the walls,
Thre' whose half-buried windows
God's sunshine never falls.
Where cold, and want, and hunger
Crouched near her as she lay,
I found a fellow creature
Gasping her life away.

A chair, a broken table,
A bed of dirty straw,
A hearth all dark and fireless— But these I scarcely saw,
For the mournful sight before me
The sad and sick ning show—
Oh, never had I pictured
A scene so full of woe—

The famished and the naked,
The babes that pine for bread
The squalid group that huddled
Around the dying bed;
All this distress and sorrow
Should be in lands afar;
Was I suddenly transplanted
To "Borroboola Gha?"

Ah, no! the poor and wretched
Were close beside my door,
And I had passed them heedless
A thousand times before.
Alas, for the poor and hungry
That meet me every day,
While all my tears were given
To the suffering far away!

There's work enough for Christians In distant lands we know; Our Lord commands his servants
Through all the world to go,
Not only to the heathen;
This was his charge to them—
"Go, preach the word, beginning
First at Jerulsalem."

and women have gone into the very jaws of death—not for wealth, not for honor, not for fame, not for reward, save the approval of their own consciencies and the approbation of Heaven. Alas! many of these noble-hearted philanthropists have fallen, pierced with the fatal shafts of the releviless devices. of the relentless destroyer. Truly for these are the crowns of glory which fade not away, but endure forever. Whatever measures of relief can be devised by the National Grange with reference to our members in these plague-stricken localities I trust will be done during this session.

In regard to

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE, FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE,
the Master says it is presumed that the Worthy Representative of the National Grange to the Dominion Grange of Canada will be able to give a flattering account of the order there. It may be questionable whether American-Grange seed can be utilized and made to bring forth a hundred-fold in foreign countries, and whether the character of the seed and whether the character of the seed will not be such that the climate, soil, will not be such that the climate, soil, and atmosphere will be unfavorable to its introduction and propagation wherever attented. The time may come, however, if the Grange is true to its mission in this country—if education is disseminated, and religious intolerance dissipated in Europe—if absolute monarchies become more liberal in form and in fact—if the infernal spirit of communism is overwhelmed and annihilated by a noble, rational patriotism, that our a noble, rational patriotism, that our peaceful society may gain a permanent foothold, and spread its benign influences over lands now benighted with super-stition, bigotry, serfdom, and despotism. SECRETARY'S OFFICE.

The adoption of the recommendation of the Executive Committee by the National Grange at the last session simply making "the secretary responsible for the archives of the National Grange, and allowing him to locate his office at such place as will be most convenient such place as will be most convenient for him," was, in my judgment, a grave error. The word "archives" can be con-strued to mean only the records, and hence by the action above recited the secretary was no longer the custodian of or accountable for the other property belonging to the National Grange. It matters not that the merchandise was of little or, no value, or that supplies govematters not that the merchandise was of little or no value, or that supplies nowadays are furnished almost entirely by State secretaries in many States, the fact is, nevertheless, that so long as there is a National Grange there always will be applications made to the secretary for information and for needed articles, and he should be able to answer limited demands or to impart such knowledge where appliances may be had, that the humblest member residing in the most remote part of our country may be reasonably satisfied. To-day we have an incubus binding and weighing upon the National Grange till January 1, 1882, in the shape of release of a building in Louisville, and we have contracted to pay rent according to the terms of the agreement, amounting to nearly three thousand dollars, for which no benefit is received—and yet we have no headquar-Louisville, and we have contracted to pay rent according to the terms of the agreement, amounting to nearly three thousand dollars, for which no benefit is received—and yet we have no headquarters, no home. The secretary's office should be located at some central point accessible to the Master, Executive Central mittee, and the members of the order generally. Exigencies might arise when the records should be examined by proper authority—when changes and corrected with agricultural pursuits and the management of his office.

The Master pays, in passing, a deserved tribute of respect to the memory of Thomas Rowland Allen, of Missouri, the pioneer of Grange principles in that State.

THE CHILDREN.

Throughout this church-spired land the children are always sought for to fill our Sabbath schools. The "pillars of the church" well know the sure effects of early and constant Christian training. "Ninety and nine" never stray from the Shepherd's fold.
Now the farmers' children are needed in our ark of safety, where they may be instructed in good morals; where they may form correct habits of thought, politeness, and frugality; where tastes for reading, discussion, and music may be cultivated; where love for rural pursuits may be nurtured; where home ties may be strengthened, beautified, and riveted, and where faith in God, hope in immortality, and charity to all mankind, may be brought to light and practiced daily by a fraternal band. To some extent this necessity has already been recognized. nized.

Juvenile granges have been formed; periodical meetings have been held, when the shildren are generally invited to come together, and, in consequence of judiciously-prepared schemes, the imprestions created are invariably joyous, exalting and leating

The places you and I fill they will soon be called upon to occupy. The destiny of our order and our country is to be placed in their hands, and we are responsible to a great degree for the manner in which they shall discharge the duties devolving upon them as Patrons and as citizens of this republic.

I therefore solemnly enjoin upon you, the representatives of the several States here assembled, to teach and to enforce in your respective jurisdictions, by fre-

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint, ous leaders in times of intense excitement, may crerte a temptation to cut loose the Grange ship from her secure moorings, but an unswerving fidelity to obligations assumed will prove an anchor both sure and steadfast in seasons of ca-jolery and trial. Every semblance of an infringement of our fundamental law should be sedulously avoided. Fanatic-

Over a considerable portion of our fair land the Death Angel has spread his black wings. Towns, cities, and parishes have been depopulated, and many have fallen a prey to the beetle and the worms. This terrible scourge has afforded an ample opportunity for the exercise of the heaven-born principles of sym_athy, charity, and love. Compassionate messengers from the North, the East, and the West have hastened away from health, homes, and happiness to relieve distress, to comfort the sick, to feed the hungry, and to bury the dead. The question, "Who is my neighbor?" has not been asked. Sectional animosities have been obliterated. Breathing the provisions of greater educand women have gone into the very jaws of death—not for wealth, not for honer of the sick portion of this truth; as this is the conviction of this truth; as this is the provisions of a tariff, whereby the hands of Government are laid heavily ample opportunity for the exercise of the heaven-born principles of sym_athy, charity, and love. sacred ties which now link together the various parts. You cannot shield yourselves too much against the jealousies and heart-burnings which spring from misrepresentations; they tend to render alien to each other those who ought to alten to each other those who ought to be bound together by fraternal affection. And the 'Father of his Country,' from his consecrated resting-place at Mount Vernon, further says emphatically to us and to the people of this land this very day: 'Let me warn you in the most sol-ema manner against the baneful effects of the warn together. of the spirit of party generally. This spirit, unfortunately, is inseparable from our nature, having its root in the strongest passions of the human mind. It exists under different shapes in all governments, more or less stilled, controlled, or repressed; but in those of the popular form it is seen in its greatest rankness. and it is truly their worst enemy.' The alternate domination of one faction over alternate domination of one faction over another, sharpened by the spirit of revenge, natural to party dissension, which in different ages and countries has perpetrated the most horrid enormities, is itself a frightful despotism. But this leads at length to a more formal and permanent despotism. The disorders and miseries which result gradually incline the minds of men to seek security and repose in the absolute power of an individual; and sooner or later the chief of some prevailing faction, more able or more fortuvailing faction, more able or more fortu-nate than his competitors, turns this disposition to the purposes of his own elevation on the ruins of public liberty. Without looking forward to an extremity of this kind (which, nevertheless, ought not to be entirely out of sight), the common and continued mischiefs the spirit of party are sufficient to make it the interest and the duty of a wise people to discourage and restrain it. It serves always to distract the public councils, and enfectles the public administration. It agitates the community with ill-founded jealousies and false alarms founded jealousies and false alarms; kindles the animosity of one part against another; foments occasionally riot and insurrection. It opens the door to foreign influence and corruption, which find a facilitated access to the Government itself through the channels of party passions. Thus the policy and the will of one country are subjected to the policy and will of another. There is an opinion that parties in a free country are useful checks upon the administration of Government, and serve to keep alive the spirit of liberty. This, within certain Government, and serve to keep alive the spirit of liberty. This, within certain limits, is probably true; and in governments of a monarchial cast patriotism may look with indulgence, if not with favor, upon the spirit of party. But in those of a popular character, in governments purely elective, it is a spirit not to be encouraged. From their natural tendency, it is certain there will always be enough of that spirit for every salu-should be made—and how, I ask, can these things be done if the secretary should happen perchance to select a residence upon some enchanted island amid the fogs and anists of obscurity's ocean?

If the order is dead, it would seem fitting to dig its grave, deposit its remains, and permat some kind friend to creet a suitable monument to mark its resting-place; if living, then it should certainly have a local habitation, a home, "be it ever so humble."

Lever failed to be vigorous and ospersons, the permatalities one instrumentalities on the permatalities and act in perpetual unity, ever striving, then close to our Society guaranteed.

The farmer's vocation and its concomitant interests require more thought—and unless they are given, the probability of a relapse into ignorance, and poverty is assured beyond a doubt. Let us see to it as a class, then, that the Grange press is more

NEGLECTED CHILDREN .-- Many a mother has wept over the sins of her child, little dreaming that while she pursued her round of idle pleasures, the child was taking its first lesson in sin from the Grange, and they did not fail to do their duty. Something more than a desire "to follow in the steps of my illustrious predecessors" impels me to repeat their requests, for I deem it a matter of paramount consequence.

Wisdom demands that our steps be removed the steps of my illustrious predect.

Wisdom demands that our steps be removed the steps of my illustrious predect.

Class should be formed this winter, and taking its first lesson in sin from the example of a vicious nurse. The truth is, parents take upon themselves too many unnecessary burdens, and consider themselves bound by duty to perform too many tasks, which are of much less consequence than the teaching and perich through our medect. training of their children. The father ectified, and such legislation be had in his respect as shall tend to solidify and perpetuate the organization.

The following remarks seem to suggest themselves to me in closing:

Much has been said from time to time elative to the disposition made of the unds of the National Grange. Curiosity has prompted me to examine somewhat revival of dormant granges.

The following remarks seem to suggest themselves to me in closing:

First. This session should be as short and inexpensive as possible.

Scould. The wisdom of this body should be taxed to project plans for the raining of their children. The father has his trade or profession, and his few leisure hears he must spend in social pleasure. The mother has her household casers, and the comforts of her family to study; and besides this there is much time to be devoted to fancy work, visitors, and to amusements of one kind and another. Her children. mere secondary considerations, and de-pend upon the kindness of hirelings. Their dresses may be miracles of puff-ir's, ruffles and embroidery, but what dwarfed through neglect? Her house may be the model of neatness, her bread excel that of all her neighbors, her jel lies and preserves enough to tempt the most fastidious; but if in all this she has kept aloof from her child, has chilled his heart towards her, what does it count?

Suffer not disappointment by employ ing too many "cures;" - but for the dis cases of Infancy use Dr. Bull's Baby Syr up which never disappoints, and costs only 25 cents a bottle.
